FLOOD OF 1993

Missouri Highway and Transportation Department

The Flood of 1993

In the summer of 1993, Missouri and other midwestern states were hit by the worst flooding in area history. Several months of heavy rain caused flood levels that broke all the old records, destroyed communities along many rivers and caused millions of dollars in damage.

In Missouri, transportation systems were severely damaged. It was up to the Missouri Highway and Transportation Department to get its state transportation system back in working order as soon as possible.

The following pictures, taken in late July and early August of 1993, show the magnitude of the department's task.

Missouri Highway and Transportation Department

downtown Jefferson City

Route 54 Jefferson City

Route 54 Jefferson City

Route 54 Jefferson City

Route 54 Jefferson City

Route 54 Jefferson City

Route 54 Jefferson City

Route 54 Jefferson City

Route 54 Jefferson City

Route 54 Jefferson City

Route 54 Jefferson City

Route 54 Jefferson City

north Jefferson City

north Jefferson City

Route 54 north Jefferson City

Route 54 north Jefferson City

Route 63 north of Jefferson City

Route 63 north of Jefferson City

Route 63 north of Jefferson City

Route 63 north of Jefferson City

Route 63 north of Jefferson City

Route 63 north of Jefferson City

Route 240 Glasgow (adjacent railroad bridge)

Route 13 between Henrietta and Lexington

Route 13 between Henrietta and Lexington

Route 13 north of Lexington

Route BB west of Kirksville

Route 46 Nodaway County

Route 59 at Interstate 29, Holt County

Route 291 north of Missouri River

Route 291 north of Missouri River

Route 24 west of Brunswick

Route 24 west of Brunswick

Routes 24 and 61 interchange, Marion County

Route 24 Quincy

Route 24-61 at Route 6, Marion County

Route 24-61 at Route 6, Marion County

Downtown St. Louis

Route 40 St. Louis County

Telegraph Road at Meramec River,
St. Louis/Jefferson counties

Telegraph Road at Meramec River, St. Louis/Jefferson counties

Route 370 at Missouri Bottom Road, St. Louis County

Route 367 St. Louis County

Route 61-67 Arnold

Route 51 Chester Bridge

Route 177 north of Cape Girardeau

Route 177 north of Cape Girardeau

Routes 74 and 25, Dutchtown

Dutchtown, east of Route 25

Route A east of Altenburg

Route C Perry County